II. DEFINITIONS

INSTITUTION – an academic institution offering educational programs at the post-secondary level.

ACCREDITATION – the process whereby a private, nongovernmental agency or association grants public recognition to an educational institution or specialized program of study which meets certain established qualifications and educational standards, as determined through initial and subsequent periodic evaluations.

The primary purposes of the accreditation process are to provide a professional judgment as to the ability of educational institutions or programs to meet national standards, and to encourage continued improvement, thereby supporting the training of individuals who are able to enter the public sector as competent and professional participants.

There are two basic types of accreditation:

1. General or Regional Accreditation – an expression of confidence by a regional agency that an educational institution's goals are soundly conceived; that its purposes are being accomplished; and that the institution is so organized, staffed, and supported that it should continue to merit such confidence for a specified number of years. It indicates that the institution as a whole has been examined and has been found to be achieving its broadly-based institutional purposes satisfactorily.

General or regional accreditation affords general academic recognition of degrees offered by the institution but does not indicate that these degree programs have undergone intensive evaluation in areas of specialization or that they have met professional standards in those areas of specialization.

The regional associations are: Middle States Commission on Higher Education; New England Association of Schools and Colleges Commission on Institutions of Higher Education; Higher Learning Commission; Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges; and Western Association of Schools and Colleges Senior College and University Commission.

2. Specialized or Professional Accreditation – an expression of confidence by one of the recognized professional accrediting agencies that specific degree programs in a particular area of professional specialization are soundly conceived; that the purposes of these programs are being accomplished; and that the professional degree program is so organized, staffed, and supported that it should continue to merit such confidence for a specified number of years. Professional accreditation affords academic and professional recognition of specific degrees offered by institutions and indicates that these degree programs have been extensively evaluated by peers in the profession and have met minimum national professional standards in the area of specialization. NASM is the professional accrediting association for all curricular programs and degrees in music. NASM accreditation signifies that an institution's music programs and/or degrees have undergone extensive evaluation by professional peers and have met national standards for such programs established by the Association.

Although all accreditation is voluntary, most postsecondary institutions seek general or regional accreditation, and many seek professional accreditation of specific programs.

APPROVAL OF AN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM – a process whereby a private, nongovernmental agency or association representing a specific profession grants recognition to a specialized program of study which meets certain qualifications and educational criteria as determined by initial and subsequent periodic evaluations. Completion of an approved program typically affords the individual student professional recognition by entitling him or her to seek certification and registration by an appropriate credentialing agency.

Approval signifies that a specialized program of study has undergone extensive evaluation by the agency and has met the minimum criteria established by the agency for the preparation of individual professionals. The American Music Therapy Association is an example of an approval agency.

CERTIFICATION – Certification is the process by which a nongovernmental agency or association representing a profession grants recognition to an individual who has met certain predetermined qualifications specified by that agency or association.

Following current practice, upon completion of the bachelor's degree in music therapy (or its equivalent), music therapists are eligible to sit for the national board certification exam and to seek the credential MT-BC (Music Therapist-Board Certified) which is necessary for professional practice. This credential is granted by the Certification Board for Music Therapists (CBMT), a national, independent agency. CBMT awards the professional credential of Music Therapist-Board Certified (MT-BC) which indicates to the public that an individual has met specific education and clinical training eligibility requirements, has passed an objective certification examination demonstrating the required level of competence to practice as a music therapist, and is participating in a program of continuing education designed to maintain or improve that level of competence.

Music therapists who currently hold the professional designations of ACMT, CMT, or RMT are listed on the National Music Therapy Registry (NMTR) and as such are designated as qualified to practice music therapy. However, beginning in the year 2020, NMTR will cease this registry and all music therapists wanting to practice professionally must become board-certified (MT-BC).

LICENSURE – the process by which an agency of government grants permission to persons meeting predetermined qualifications to engage in a given occupation and/or use a particular title; or grants permission to institutions to perform specified functions.

III. FUNCTIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE PARTIES

NASM recognizes AMTA as the agency representing the profession of music therapy. While NASM is concerned principally with educational programs in music therapy in the context of the quality of the total music curriculum offered, AMTA is concerned principally with the quality of educational programs in music therapy as they affect the preparation of individual music therapists and their future impact upon research and practice in the field of music therapy.

Recognizing the unique elements of educational programs needed to prepare professional music therapists, NASM has established a consultative relationship with AMTA.

NASM

NASM is recognized by the United States Department of Education as the sole agency responsible for the accreditation of all postsecondary educational programs in music in the United States, including educational programs in music therapy. NASM also provides other services to its constituency in support of its accreditation function and the attendant emphasis on the maintenance of high educational standards.

NASM is an independent, autonomous organization responsible only to its membership, the general public, the higher education community, and the Federal government as represented by the United States Department of Education.

NASM claims no authority, legal or otherwise, for the certification and registration of professional music therapists.

AMTA

AMTA is a national organization, the purpose of which is to enhance the progressive development of music therapy as the clinical and evidenced-based use of music interventions to accomplish individualized goals within a therapeutic relationship by a credentialed professional who has completed an approved music therapy degree program. Music therapists practice in a wide variety of settings and serve individuals of all ages. Predecessors, unified in 1998, include the National Association for Music Therapy founded in 1950 and the American Association for Music Therapy founded in 1971. AMTA is committed to the advancement of education, training, professional standards, credentials, and research in the support of the music therapy profession.

As an independent, autonomous organization, AMTA is responsible only to its membership, the health community, the general public, and the higher education community.

AMTA claims no authority, legal or otherwise, for the accreditation of postsecondary educational programs in music therapy.

Each organization party to this agreement shall recognize and respect the functional and procedural independence of the other party and shall not enter into agreements or develop policies with any other party which would contravene this functional and procedural independence or which would work to the detriment of cooperation between the parties.

IV. OPERATIONAL PRINCIPLES FOR THE REVIEW OF POSTSECONDARY EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS IN MUSIC THERAPY

Accreditation of the Music Therapy Program by NASM

Regardless of any regional or general accreditation an institution may have, an institution may receive the professional accreditation as defined earlier for its educational program in music therapy only through the National Association of Schools of Music. Such accreditation shall be forthcoming after the institution has demonstrated that its program in music therapy meets the nationally recognized standards of NASM, this after having completed satisfactorily the procedures for accreditation as published by NASM.

Approval of the Music Therapy Program by AMTA

An institution may receive approval of its educational program in music therapy from the American Music Therapy Association. This approval is not equivalent to accreditation. The approval signifies that the institution's educational program satisfies the requirements of AMTA in preparation for professional certification as administered by the Certification Board for Music Therapists (CBMT). The approval shall be forthcoming after the institution has demonstrated that its educational program can be expected to produce music therapists who are qualified and eligible to apply for certification, this after having completed satisfactorily the procedures for approval as published by AMTA.

The Relationship Between “Accreditation” and “Approval”

There shall be no legal agreement between the parties which establishes that NASM accreditation of an educational program in music therapy or the institution in which it is housed shall depend upon AMTA approval of that institution's educational program in music therapy. Neither shall there be a legal agreement between the parties which establishes that AMTA approval of an educational program in music therapy shall depend upon NASM accreditation of that program or the institution in which it is housed.

The Relationship Between the Accreditation Association and the Approval Agency

The parties agree to maintain a consultative relationship, cooperating for the benefit of the field of music therapy. The provisions of this document shall be used as the basis for such cooperation.

V. PROCEDURES REGARDING NASM ACCREDITATION OF AN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM IN MUSIC THERAPY

Applications

The NASM “Rules of Practice and Procedure” as found in the Association’s Handbook state that:

The Association will grant Membership or renewal of Membership only when every curricular program of the applicant institution (including graduate work, if offered) meets the standards of the Association.

Therefore, these procedures regarding accreditation of music therapy programs apply in three instances:

- A. Accreditation of an applicant institution with a program in music therapy.
- B. Renewal of the accreditation of a member institution with a program in music therapy.
- C. The application of a member institution for Plan Approval or Plan Approval and Final Approval for Listing of a program in music therapy during the time between periodic evaluations for renewal of accreditation.

Procedural Components of the Accreditation of Music Therapy Programs

- A. Self-Evaluation. The institution shall provide information confirming its ability to meet standards regarding its music therapy program. In the case of first-time applications for accreditation or applications for renewal of accreditation, this information shall be a part of the NASM Self-Study document prepared by the institution. In the case of a new music therapy program in a previously accredited institution, this information shall be submitted as a part of the Plan Approval process.

PLEASE NOTE: The approval process of AMTA also requires the provision of information regarding music therapy programs. Such information must be submitted by the institution to AMTA according to procedures stipulated by AMTA.

- B. Institutional Visit. Institutions seeking accreditation which have music therapy programs shall have, as a member of the regular NASM evaluation team, at least one individual who is familiar by experience with educational programs in music therapy. This individual shall be an official representative of an NASM member institution that has a program in music therapy. This procedure is also applicable for accredited institutions submitting applications for Plan Approval of music therapy curricula concurrent with reevaluation for continuation of accreditation.

NASM evaluators work on behalf of NASM. However, prior to the visit, the NASM visiting evaluators may be consulted and/or briefed by AMTA regarding specific issues relevant to the review of the program, this with prior knowledge of the institution and NASM. The procedures for each specific case would be developed by the Executive Director of NASM in consultation with the NASM visiting evaluators, the institution, and AMTA.

An institutional visit is not required when accredited institutions request Plan Approval for new curricula in music therapy during the period between reevaluations. An institutional visit is recommended when offering a new degree at a new level, such as a first master's degree.

PLEASE NOTE: Procedures for NASM review of applications for accreditation of music therapy programs shall be in effect as endorsed by the parties as outlined in the NASM documents Procedures for Institutions or Policies and Procedures for Reviews of New Curricula.
